

Junior Intraday Trader (Power/Gas) (w/m)

BKW Energie AG is an owner and operator of renewable energy units around Europe. We are looking for a highly motivated candidate to join the Intraday Trading Team in Berne. Enter the world of energy trading in this junior position and contribute positively to the trading results of the company.

Ralf Minnig, Head of Intraday Trading, has found the following position for you:

You are passionate about this field

As a junior you are part of an internationally oriented team and work in a dynamic 24/7 environment. You will learn all the fundamentals of the European power and gas markets. You will be assisted by a mentor and after a short period you will be participating in the shift work of the team. Step by step you will practise how to optimise the company's asset portfolio and follow existing strategies. After a while you will help to develop new trading approaches based on your data analyses. After the successful completion of your training program, you are responsible for the trading results in multiple countries during your shift.

We're impressed by your expertise

- Technical or economical higher education degree.
- Professional experience in energy or trading is a plus.
- Fluency in English is mandatory, additional language skills in German are beneficial.
- Excellent analytical skills.
- Experience in coding languages such as VBA and/or Python.
- Adaptability, flexibility and the ability to work under pressure.
- Willingness to participate in the team's 24/7 trading shift scheme

What you can look forward to

As a responsible employer, we offer:

- Fair and market-oriented remuneration
- Flexible working models
- Personalised training and development opportunities
- Comprehensive health management system
- A progressive infrastructure
